

Abstract

A system and method of securing a USB Interface of a personal computer against inputs from a user when the keyboard of the personal computer is secured against user inputs. By combining the hardware locking of the USB Interface is with the locking of the keyboard controllers, a potential circumvention of the keyboard controller lock is avoided and security of the data stored on a personal computer is increased.

RP9-99-125